Alex Katz is considered one of the forerunners of Pop Art and his artistic career is characterised by the development of his unique approach to contemporary representational painting during the heyday of Abstract Expressionism. Over the seven decades since his first exhibition in 1954, he has produced a celebrated body of work that includes paintings, drawings, sculptures and prints. Working primarily from life, he produces images in which line and form are expressed through carefully composed brushstrokes and planes of flat colour. Katz's most recognisable works are large-scale canvases populated by simplified figures against a monochrome background that minimises any sense of context.

He studied at the Cooper Union School of Art in New York and the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture in Maine. Throughout his career he has created numerous public art projects, including a Times Square billboard (1977), an aluminium mural for Harlem Station (1984) and a recent installation of 19 large-scale works on glass for the New York underground. His work has been the subject of over 200 solo exhibitions internationally, including at the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York (1974, 1986, 2002); Institute of Contemporary Arts, London (1990); Baltimore Museum of Art (1996); Irish Museum of Modern Art, Dublin (2007); Sara Hildén Art Museum, Tampere, Finland (2009); National Portrait Gallery, London (2010); Albertina, Vienna (2014); The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York (2015); Serpentine Galleries, London (2016); Tate Liverpool (2018); Musée de l'Orangerie, Paris (2019); and Museo Nacional Thyssen-Bornemisza, Madrid (2020), followed by a retrospective of his career at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York (2022).
